

GLOBAL PREPAREDNESS PARTNERSHIP IS OPERATIONAL

TWENTY FIVE COUNTRIES HAVE APPLIED NOW IS THE TIME FOR ACTION!

GPP STATUS

In October 2017, twenty-five V20 member states applied for GPP support. In order to 'kick start' the GPP process, and to help to attract longer term donor support, the World Bank has been approached to access resources to support initial diagnostic reviews.

On February 9, 2018, the World Bank announced six countries as likely to receive support to initiate country level diagnostic reviews; Bhutan, Burkina Faso, Guatemala, Maldives, Nepal and Sri Lanka.

Disasters erase development gains and create humanitarian crises. The rationale of the Global Preparedness Partnership (GPP) is to save lives, livelihoods, time and money when disaster strikes through focused, coherent, coordinated preparedness with national governments in the drivers' seat. Effective response and recovery preparedness provides savings on costly international responses, and saves time and provides long-term savings in development assistance.

The GPP enables national control, with the V20 a founding partner at the global level, and governments in charge at the national level. The partnership includes as Financial Core Partners: FAO, GFDRR/WB, OCHA, UNDP, the V20 group of countries and WFP. Other partners include CADRI, GNDR, IFRC and UNOPS and others are welcome.

A Multi Partner Trust Fund (MPTF) has been established to support the GPP programmes, and is led by a Steering Committee and an Operational Subcommittee chaired by Barbados and the Philippines oversees operational decision making and fund capitalisation.
